REACH registration status

Date issued: Jan. 2011

Butyl Polymers products REACH classification

All of the Butyl Polymer products sold by ExxonMobil Chemical affiliates in Europe are classified as polymers under Article 2 (9) of the REACH regulation, therefore they are excluded from the scope of REACH.

However, the REACH regulation does require monomers and other substances that are bound to the polymer, as well as additives, be registered with the European Chemical Agency (ECHA). In respect of these substances, ExxonMobil is compliant with the REACH legislation.

Butyl Polymers communication of REACH registration numbers

For the monomers and other substances subject to registration, only the registration numbers for hazardous substances as classified per regulation EC no. 1272/2008 and directive 1999/45/EC or assessed to be PBT or vPvB, are required to be communicated to downstream users.

All of the butyl Polymer products or preparations sold by ExxonMobil Chemical affiliates in Europe are according to regulation EC no. 1272/2008 and directive 1999/45/EC non-hazardous and further do not meet the criteria for being declared PBT or vPvB.

Therefore, there is no obligation under the REACH legislation to report registration numbers for any Butyl Polymer products or Butyl product polymer constituents sold by ExxonMobil Chemical affiliates in Europe.

Butyl Polymers REACH Summary

The attached information applies only to products manufactured by ExxonMobil within the EU or imported directly by ExxonMobil into the European Union.

Customers importing products directly themselves or as part of third party preparations should ensure that they have their own appropriate REACH coverage in place, ahead of any EU import to maintain compliance with the REACH regulation.

ExxonMobil does not provide an Only Representative service for this range of products.
